

California Space Day Sacramento Space Services Fair April 12, 2005

California Space Day Sacramento

This is an opportunity for space enterprise stakeholders to meet with and discuss space policy and regulatory issues with state legislators and administrative staff. Our goal will be to advocate a positive, supportive business climate in California by educating policymakers about the benefits, economic scope, and needs of the space enterprise community. Participants will assemble for orientation in the morning, be placed into teams for appointed meetings throughout the day, and enjoy a relaxed reception atmosphere that evening.

April 12, 2005

9:00 am - Orientation
Legislative Office Bldg.
Committee Room 100
1020 N Street

10:00 am - 5:00 pm
Meetings, Capitol Building

5:00 pm - Reception
Governor's Council Room
Office of the Governor
Capitol Building

Space Services Fair

The fair will showcase physical examples of how satellite services impact the lives of everyday folks. Agricultural management, environmental knowledge, transportation tracking, communications links, entertainment delivery, and national security protections are just a few areas in which satellite technology impacts the lives of ordinary people. California is rich in space enterprise history and the Space Services Fair helps to show the importance of commercial applications and their economic impact for our state. Participating companies will be given booth space to showcase their space-based service technologies. Participants will be asked to demonstrate how satellite space services are being used every day to improve and ease our lives. Legislators, government staff members, and the general public will have a first-hand account of tomorrow's technology in use today.

April 12, 2005

11:00 am - 2:00 pm
